

Now that we've come back again won't you tell me where we've been my darling

We flew all night on wings of light beyond the seas & the silent trees of morning

So many lonely souls in the blue waiting in the room just beyond the womb we left

waiting for the call waiting to fall back to the earth & feed the moon their breath

Your ancient love like a turtle dove sang all day in the ruins of my body

We went to goof at the movie house & ended up shining shoes out in the lobby

The angels told us many things too strange to sing far too intense to remember

We flew on a swan beyond the dawn the morning star gleaming far off in December

Endless afternoons in the blue looking down into the dream where we all come from

Endless nights floating out on light curling up inside your belly like a sleeping sun

Wake up before the birds before your words mist up the air like monkeys in the trees

You who think you are so smart go read your heart by the light of the air he breathes
